J. P. MORGAN SHOT

Man Crazed by the War Attacks Noted Banker

FIGHT WITH ASSAILANT

J. P. MORGAN

NEW YORK, July 3.---John Pierpont Morgan, head of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., the most famous banking house in America, and chief fiscal agent of the allies in this country, was shot twice and severely wounded today by a man who declared that Mr. Morgan was responsible for the continuance of the European war. The shooting occurred at Mr. Morgan's summer home at Glen Cove, L. I.

The assailant was arrested. He said that he is an American citizen, but he speaks with a German accent. After his arrest he raved about the war, declaring repeatedly that Mr. Morgan could end it.

The police say that he carried to Mr. Morgan's house two revolvers, a satchel containing six sticks of dynamite, a bottle of nitroglycerin and several fulminating caps.

The firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. announced this noon that Mr. Morgan's injuries were not likely to be fatal. He was shot in the side and in one of his legs.

It is known that there was a furious struggle between Mr. Morgan and his assailant and that the man who shot the banker was badly battered.

The following statement was issued at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. at 10:30 o'clock:

Mr. Morgan was shot by an unknown man, presumably a crank, at nine o'clock this morning at his home at Glen Cove. His physicians advise that his wounds are not serious. Two shots were fired at Mr. Morgan and both took effect.

The news of the shooting of Mr. Morgan caused a sensation in the financial district where Mr. Morgan has been the leading figure since the death of his father in 1913.

It was expected that there would be a big break in the stock market, but the official statement from the company admitting that Mr. Morgan had been shot, but stating that his wounds were not serious, was issued as soon as the first rumors were circulated.

This served to allay the excitement and it was believed that the shooting of Mr. Morgan would have no great effect upon the price of securities.

The prisoner was locked up at Glen Cove pending his removal to the county jail at Mineola.

The man arrived upon the 9:30 train upon the Long Island Railroad and approached M. F. Ford, who operates a taxicab service in Glen Cove. "I want to be driven to the residence of J. P. Morgan," said the man. "I want you to take me there quickly, for I am in a big hurry."

The man was well dressed and Ford's suspicions were in no wise aroused by the request. The "fare" got into the taxicab and began to read a newspaper. He showed no symptoms of nervousness and was entirely self-possessed.

The distance to "East Island," the Morgan country place, was quickly covered.

CAPITOL UNDER HEAVY GUARD AFTER SENATE BOMB EXPLOSION

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Police and secret service authorities are bending every effort today to solve the mystery of a terrific explosion at the Capitol near midnight that partially wrecked the public reception room of the Senate.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by some kind of bomb or infernal machine. No one was injured.

Officials believe that the explosive was placed by a crank who desired to create a sensation.

The roar of the blast was heard for nearly a mile and was followed by wild reports that the Capitol had been blown up by a dynamite bomb.

EXPLOSION WORK OF CRANK, POLICE THINK.

According to Superintendent Woods of the Capitol Building the explosion was due to a bomb placed in the reception room under the telephone switchboard by a crank.

MORGAN TWICE WOUNDED BY BULLETS

Name "Schwatzheim" Is Found Among Effects of Assailant, Who Says God Willed Him to Act.

When the Morgan place was reached, the stranger got out of the cab, and as he paid his fare he said to the taxicab driver:

"This is the man who is responsible for the European war," at the same time pointing toward the palatial mansion nestling among the trees.

The chauffeur, believing from the man's appearance that he was a business acquaintance of the banker, thought nothing of the remark, and made some commonplace reply as he drove away.

Passing up the driveway the visitor rang the bell, which was answered at once by a butler.

"I wish to see Mr. Morgan at once," said the man. As an afterthought he added, as though to insure his seeing the banker:

"It is very important."

The servant disappeared, but after a moment returned, saying:

"Mr. Morgan regrets to say that he cannot see you because he is very busy."

This aroused the stranger's anger.

"Won't he see me?" he snarled, drawing a 38-calibre revolver from his pocket. "He will see me. He is responsible for this war and it has got to stop. He is the man who can stop it."

MORGAN HURRIES INTO DANGER.

The butler upon seeing the weapon gave a shout of fear, and Mr. Morgan, who was reading in the library at the time, hurried out to ascertain the cause of the commotion.

As Mr. Morgan appeared, the butler, mastering his fear, grappled with the assailant, who was shouting: "I cannot help it; I must see Morgan. This war hos got to stop. It has gone too far now. I've come here to serve my country."

In the scuffle the weapon was dropped, but the would-be assassin, breaking the other's grip, drew another weapon, a 32-calibre pistol. "Help my country," he shouted at the financier, who had stopped short at the sight which greeted his eyes.

Before Mr. Morgan could say anything the man began to fire. One bullet struck Mr. Morgan in the leg, inflicting a flesh wound, and the other struck him in the side. The financier retained his presence of mind and started forward for his assailant.

ASSAILANT OVERPOWERED.

The noise had aroused the household and servants were pouring in from all directions. Even the housemaids took part in overpowering the intruder.

The butler had picked up a heavy brass coal hod, which he hurled at the stranger, striking him in the forehead and knocking him down. In the meantime, Mr. Morgan, not knowing how badly he was hurt, staggered into the library and collapsed in a chair. While some of the servants were telephoning for Dr. William H. Zabriski and for the police, others were caring for the financier, and still others were trussing up the prostrate man, who was now confidently believed to be an Anarchist.

When Dr. Zabriski arrived he made a hasty examintion and immediately reassured the family that Mr. Morgan's wounds were slight and that no fears need be felt.

Constable Frank McCahill arrived and took charge of the prisoner. The stranger, his face and clothes covered with blood from the cut in his forehead, was in the hall of the Morgan home showing at the assembled servants who glared back at him. All were armed with such nondescript weapons as shovels, canes, gardening articles and, in short, anything that could be found.

"I was sent by God to do this," screamed the man. "Nobody helped me. I am an American citizen. I am willing to pay with my lif for what I have done."

It was evident the man thought he had killled Mr. Morgan.

REFUSES NAME.

McCahill hastened the man to the town hall where he was questioned at length.

"I won't tell my name, but I am an American citipen," declared the prisoner.

"Morgan ought to stop this war. He is the only one who can do it. I want the world to know my position. My country will thank me for this noble deed."

When the prisoner learned that Mr. Morgan had been wounded only slightly he exclaimed with an oath: "I failed, but God willed it should be done."

The prisoner further showed his pro-German tendencies when he taked about the position of J. P. Morgan & Co. as the fiscal agents and ammunition buyers of the Allies in this country.

Immediately after the shooting the following telegram was sent to Mrs. J. P. Morgan, mother of the wounded man, at Highland Falls, N. Y.: "John attacked by lunatic with pistol and slightly wounded. Is doing well."

The police made a thorough examination of t hetwo suit cases carried by the stranger. They found evidence, they declared, upon which they will have no difficulty in having the man indicted upon the charge of attempting to murder Mr. Morgan.

The satchels revealed numerous railroad tickets to all parts of the country, indicating he was prepared to use almost any road to escape. There was an express slip upon which was written the name "Schwartzheimer." That is believed to be the man's name. Numerous irration: lly worded nots wr also found.

The express tag showed that a packag had been sent from Ithaca, N. Y., to Dallas, Texas.

RAVES OF WAR'S END.

Shortly after his arrest the man was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Luyster on a charge of felonious assault and held without bail. Later he was removed to Mineola and placed in the Nassau County Jail.

"Why did you do this?" asked Justice Luyster.

"Because I am a true American citizen," replied the prisoner. "I am going to do all I can to end this war in Europe. The only way to do it is to kill those responsible for it."

After that the prisoner became silent and would say no more. He would not even answer questions. Dr. Connelly, who examined the prisoner, declared he was undoubtedly insane.

The man is tall, thin and dark, is age is about thirty. In appearance he resembles a German Jew.

One of the bullets which struck Mr. Morgan entered an oil painting that was upon the wall behind him. The man's aim was bad and neither of the bullets came near a vital spot. The one which might have inflicted a serious or perhaps fatal wound, was that which struck the left side.

EASY TO ESCAPE.

Mr. Morgan, with his wife and daughters, went to "East Island," his Summer home at Glen Cove, immediately after the marriage of his son, Junius Spencer Morgan, in Boston, about two weeks ago.

"East Island," where the shooting occurred, is a wooded tract of land almost surrounded by water. It is at the far head of a tiny peninsula and is an extremely isolated location. The assailant could easily have slunk through the thick shrubbery until he reached a position close to the house, which is a magnificent structure containing more than a score of rooms.

MORGAN WAS CHIEF FISCAL AGENT OF ALLIES IN AMERICA

J. Pierpont Morgan, who since the death of his father has been the big figure in the American financial world, has likewise been the American who has had the biggest part in purchases of war material for the allies in this country.

Early in the war he was chosen by the British government as its official agent in this country to make all purchases.

This relation continued for some time without friction, when questions in Parliament revealed the fact the British manufacturers were complaining of discrimination on the part of the Morgan firm.

They charged that Mr. Morgan's methods in the purchase of munitions were costing the British government a great deal more than was necessary, and that the Morgan firm was making more profit than was reasonable.

THOMAS AN AGENT.

The British government denied there was any such irregularity in the work of the Morgan firm, but nevertheless, following the formation of the coalition ministry, D. A. Thomas, a wealthy Welsh coal operator and a survivor of the Lusitania disaster, was appointed agent in charge of all purchases in the United States and Canada. Mr. Thomas recently came to this country.

Mr. Morgan's work has been with Mr. Thomas since the latter's appointment. The British government said the Morgan firm was not superseded by the appointment of Mr. Thomas.

The house of Morgan has made loans to the French and British governments, it is reported, and has assisted in financing the war in this country for the allies.

Nevertheless the stock markets believe friction is strong between Mr. Morgan and the British leaders.

IN BRITISH WAR LOAN.

The latest of Mr. Morgan's war activities was reported today when a New York paper said a syndicate had been formed, composed of J. P. Morgan & Co., the National City Bank of New York and the First National Bank, to negotiate with the British treasury for $100,000,000 of the new British war loan.

The Morgan firm is reported to be insisting that this portion of the loan be freed from the English income tax, so as to make it attractive to American investors.

Another New York paper said a total of $300,000,000 of the loan would be placed in this country at an interest of 5 per cent.

WIFE A BOSTON WOMAN.

J. P. Morgan is forty-eight years old. He was carefully trained by his father, the late J. Pierpont Morgan, after his graduation from Harvard in 1889, to take his place in the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co.

In 1890 he married Jane Norton Grew of Boston. He has shown a particular fondness for Boston on account of his wife's relatives here, also on account of his mother, who is a Boston woman.

His last visit to Boston was to the Harvard Commencement. He care early to attend a meeting of the Harvard overseers. He chatted in the yard with Major Henry L. Higginson before going into his meeting. Later he was in the Commencement procession and at the Sanders Theatre exercises.

His previous visit to Boston was only a week before the Harvard Commencement. He came with his wife and mother on his private yacht, the Corsair, to attend the wedding of his elder son, Junius Spencer Morgan, to Louise Converse at Dedham.

SOLD ART TREASURES.

During the past year Morgan sold off the bulk of the great collection of paintings, books, furniture and art treasures gathered by his father. The paintings alone brought over a million dollars.

He also sold off within the past month control of the Equitable Life Insurance Company to General du Pont.

The explanation given was that he desired this capital for interests which the firm now considered more profitable and important.

A magazine writer had this to say of Morgan recently:

"J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., is a big, heavy-motioned man, with a frank, direct expression of face and a careless, easy manner. In general mold and facial lines he strongly resembles his father. He lacks his father's fire and violent driving power, but he has a very evident power of his own.

"He is a man simple, direct and absolutely unaffected in his personal contact, but rather diffident and retiring from public scrutiny—of the type that makes the big, quiet, athletic hero as a college boy, but consistently prefers suicide with honor to speaking at a public dinner.

"He is overshadowed now by the personality of his father, but those who know him best hold that in his time, with a different method, he will furnish all the strength essential to direct the Morgan firm. Far different from his father, the more the son is crowded by affairs the more urbane his manners grow, and the more conciliatory his way the harder his determination.

GOT TRAINING ABROAD.

"Young Morgan is the type of a good, sound, working business man. He has, as his father had, a knowledge of foreign exchange, gained by his training abroad, equalled by few men in this country, and he has a similar and even more valuable equipment in his expert knowledge of the kinds of securities which European markets now demand.

"But, like his father, he has few theoretical interests. He is not the kind likely to go out nights, after business, and spoil his intellectual digestion by feeding on new ideas. The great new social and economic movements that centre upon his firm will never have their final analysis from him. Other men must contribute this, and do."

HAD MANY INTERESTS.

Immediately after his graduation from Harvard Mr. Morgan entered the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. of New York, and Morgan, Grenfell & Co. of London. From that time on his power in the business and financial world grew rapidly and he became director in many banks and corporations. Among them were:

Astor Trust Company of New York.
Harlem River & Portchester Railroad.
Hartford & Connecticut Western Railroad.
International Mercantile Marine Company.
Milbrook Company.
National Bank of Commerce.
National City Bank of New York.
New England Navigation oCmpany.
New England Steamship Company.
New York & Harlem Railroad.
New York Central & Hudson River Railroad.
New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.
New York Trade School.
Northrn Pacific Railway.
United States Steel Corporation.
West Shore Railroad.
Western Union Telegraph Company.

Among the clubs of which Mr. Morgan was a member are the Metropolitan, the Union, the University, the New York Yacht, the Harvard, the Racquet and the Century of New York city, and the St. James and City of London Clubs of London.

Mr. Morgan maintained a town house at 231 Madison avenue and his country place at Glen Cove was one of the finest in America. He also maintained a home in London at No. 12 Grosvenor square.

WAS AVERSE TO "SHOW."

Mr. Morgan inherited much of the brusqueness of his father and cared little for show. His attitude in this respect was shown when he was a witness before the Federal commission on industrial relations. The members tried in vain to get him to theorize upon the conditions existing between labor and capital and to suggest remedies for "problems." In his attitude toward business and capital Mr. Morgan has been considered reactionary; his views were old-fashioned.

The financier has four children, Junius Spencer, who was married only last week; Jane Norton, Frances Tracy and Henry Sturgis.

Since the outbreak of the European war interest has been drawn toward the house of Morgan because of its appointment as fiscal agents for the Allies in the United States. His personal fortune is estimated t maore than $200,000,000.

YOUNG MORGAN AND BRIDE HERE DURING WEEK

Young Junius Spencer Morgan, elder son of J. P. Morgan, has been spending the past week with his bride at her parents' home, "Crossways," in the town of Westwood.

They left yesterday over the road in an automobile for New York. They have leased a house there, as Morgan is to enter the Morgan banking house at once.

VOL. 1. BOSTON, 3 LUGLIO, 1915. NO. 11.

Lungo il Fronte Sempre Avanti!

MILANO, 2 Luglio—A dispetto del tempo orribile, che rende difficili le operazioni militari, le forze Italiane vanno lentamente innanzi, un passo dopo l'altro.

La lotta lungo tutto il fronte, che e' forzata dagli Italiani, e' disperata.

Gli Italiani avanzano sempre incontrando una seria ed ostinata difesa ed una contro offensiva del nemici che invano si sagrificano per riconquistare le perdute posizioni.

Gli Italiani hanno ancora occupato i due picchi Banjschi e Skeden, che si stendono innanzi a dominare la vallata dell' Isonzo.

PARIGI, 3 Luglio.—Secondo un telegramma da Roma, gli Italiani hanno conquistata Tolmino, che e' la chiave della vallata dell' Isonzo. Tolmino era difesa da una guarnigione di 30,000 soldati.

ROMA, 2 Luglio.—Per la seconda volta nella storia, unaviatore e' riuscito a far affondare un sottomarino.

Un sottomarino Austriaco, nell' Adriatico, e' stato colpito da bombe gettategli da un areoplano francese, in seguito agli effetti delle quali e' affondato.

Il minitsro della Marina dice che il fatto avvenne giovedi. Il sottomarino U-11 galleggiava sulla superficie del mare, ed apparentemente non si accorgeva che l'areoplano spaziava su, in alto. Con una subitanea caduta, l'areoplano venne a fermarsi appena a 25 piedi sulla tolda del sottomarino. Era troppo tardi per una sommersione che avrebbe salvato il sottomarino. Due bombe furon lanciate, ed ambo colpirono il sottomarino vicino la torretta. Il sottomarino affondo' quasi istantaneamente. L' U-11 era uno dei piu' moderni sottomarini austriaci, ed aveva a bordo 25 uomini.

Parechi giorni fa fu un areoplano tedesco che affondo' un sottomarino russo.

Al principio delle ostilita' i Francesi avevano 1500 areoplani e 115 sottomarini. Gli Inglesi 1200 areoplani e 85 sotomarini.

Plezzo Soccombe Accerchiata

Plezzo una posizione fortificata di primo ordine, che e' la chiave della parte superiore della valata dell' Isonzo, e' gradualmente circondata coll' avanzata strategica degli Italiani, che si inizio' con la presa di monte Nero, seguita dalla sistematica occupazione di tutti i puti importanti vicini.

Plezzo e' circondata da tre lati e non si potra' a lungo sostenere. Appare che digia' gli Austriaci hanno rimosso parte delle batterie di grosso calibro. Gli Italiani operano simultaneamente in tutti i settori. Malborghetto e' sempre bombardata ed un punto di esso e' stato vulnerato.

POPE EXPRESSES HIS LOVE FOR FRANCE

By FRANKLIN P. MERRICK,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

PARIS, July 3.—Fernand Laudet, a Paris journalist and former secretary of the French Embassy to the Vatican, contributes to the Figaro today an account of an audience granted to him last Sunday by Pope Benedict XV.

His story is expected to alter in marked fashion the impression caused by the interview published by La Liberte, in which the Pontiff was depicted as favoring Germany. M. Laudet says the Pope deplored the effect of the interview so sensationally set forth in La Liberte, and quotes him as follows:

"I love France dearly. A French mother wrote me her son was dying of hunger in Germany and I did my best to have certain prisoners interned in Switzerland.

"My sole object in composing a peace prayer was to adjure Jesus to restore tranquility to the turbulent world yet Frenchmen accuse me of attempting to forward Germany's plans.

"As to the Rheims cathedral I ordered the cardinal archbishop of Cologne to express my displeasure to the Emperor and beg him to spare religious edifices in the future. The Emperor replied he would do what was possible. If this promise was not kept, how can I be blamed? I have done all I can, and I have done a lot of things that France knows nothing about.

"I condemn atrocities absolutely. Everybody knows that Germany committed them, but I cannot apportion the blame without concrete evidence. I condemn highly the martyrdom of the poor Belgian priests.

"I await only the occasion to convince France of my sympathy."

Weather Man Hopes for Fair Day Monday

eH makes no definite promises. He doesn't stake his reputation on it, either. He merely "hopes," and this hope is based on his astronomical sense of present conditions.

"It will probably be fair," he says. "Conditions are so mixed up that it is quite hard to tell with any degreeof certainty. There is no definite storm in sight, but, of course, conditions are unsettled throughout the country. The chances are 'probably fair.'"

"Probable local showers" was the forecast for Sunday.

Hold Woman of 47 for Elopement with Youth of 17

HARTFORD, Ct., July 3.—Mrs. Angie C. Shastany, forty-seven, and Leon Brown, seventeen, a high school student, both of Springfield, who were arrested at a boarding house on complaint of the woman's husband, have been taken back to Springfield.

The woman is charged with eloping with the high school student and deserting her husband and three children. They attracted considerable attention in this city, and though young Brown introduced the woman as his wife, their behavior aroused suspicion.

Jeremiah A. Desmond has filed with Secretary Langtry the first installment of signatures to the papers for the nomination of Charles L. Burrill of Boston for State Treasurer in the primaries.

GUARD CAPITOL AFTER EXPLOSION

The damage was confined to the reception room and will be less than $1,000, according to an estimate today by Superintendent Woods. The foundations and other portions of the Senate side of the building are intact.

RECALL THREAT TO PLACE BOMB.

Captain Laughton, chief of the Capitol police, agrees with Superintendent Woods that the explosion was caused by a bomb placed by a crank hours before it went off.

Captain Laughton stated that six months ago a man in St. Louis wrote a letter to Vice-President Marshall, while Congress was in session, threatening to blow up the Capitol unless certain legislation was enacted. The captain said he made an investigation at that time, when the letter was turned over to him, with the assistance of postoffice inspectors.

Soon after the explosion the room was put under guard and no one permitted to enter and remove any possible clew.

Persons who reached the Capitol soon after the explosion occurred said they noticed the odor of burned powder and that it remained for fifteen or twenty minutes.

There were others who concluded that the blast had been caused by spontaneous combustion in a gas pipe. The sides of the walls were torn out, however, and all the pipes apparently were intact.

There had been no gas fixtures on the Senate side since an explosion occurred there nearly twenty years ago. A strong odor permeated the building, but none seemed able to detect just what it was.

No trace could be found of an exploded bomb nor of anything else which might have caused the blast.

STORY OF NIGHT WATCHMAN.

F. G. Jones, of the Capitol night watch, on duty at the time of the explosion, said he was thrown violently from a big armchair into the middle of the corridor. He continued:

"I regained my feet bewildered, hardly knowing which way to turn. The men on duty came running from every direction. As soon as we recovered from the effects of the shock we started an investigation.

"We saw that the explosion had been on the upper or main floor of the Senate wing. Smoke was coming from the direction of the Senate chamber through the reception room. When we reached the reception room, where the explosion took place, it was filled with a black, blinding smoke with the smell of powder, indicating that the explosion was due to that cause.

"After the smoke had cleared away we entered the room and found everything wrecked. A short time after we entered the room Superintendent Elliott Woods, who had been in his office, came hurrying to the scene of the wreck with several members of his staff. Chief of Police Loughton was among the first men to get into the wrecked room after the smoke had cleared."

30 GERMAN AND RUSSIAN SHIPS IN BATTLE

LONDON, July 3.—With more than thirty Russian and German warships taking part, a great naval battle is raging in the Baltic, according to reports received here today from Copenhagen.

The battle began off the Swedish coast on Friday morning with ten cruisers and twenty torpedo boats participating.

The Russians opened the attack and some of the German ships were reported to have been badly damaged and forced to retire.

In the meantime, however, other German cruisers arrived on the scene and the Russians were forced to retire northward under the heavier fire of their opponents.

From the various dispatches received from Stockholm, Copenhagen and Petrograd it is indicated that there is great naval activity in more than one sphere of the Baltic and that considerable damage was inflicted by the guns on both sides.

PUTS INTO KIEL.

The German battleship Wittelsbach is reported to have put into Kiel with many shell rents under the water line.

Stockholm reports that the sound of heavy gun fire was heard off Gothland for many hours on Friday.

Further details have been received of the attack upon the German mine layer Albatross, which, upon being chased by four Russain cruisers, was beached upon Gothland Island, with twenty-seven dead upon her decks.

A Stockholm dispatch says the Swedish ambassador at Petrograd has been ordered to make a protest against the alleged violation of Swedish neutrality in the attack upon the Gothland.

Among the twenty-seven killed upon the Albatross were Captain Lowenherd and the ship's doctor. Thirty-three others were badly wounded. The 165 unwounded seamen were interned by the Swedish government.

ATTACKED BY RUSSIANS.

The Albatross had put to sea under the convoy of four cruisers of the Augsberg type. She carried 225 men and was under orders to mine Russian ports.

While lying in a fog a flotilla of Russian cruisers came up and opened fire, twenty-five shells raking the mine layer and cutting away her masts.

Official intelligence from Berlin upon the naval operations is lacking, but the German Admiralty denied the Russian report that a cruiser of the Madgeburg type had been sunk off Windau.

A dispatch from Petrograd says a Russian submarine has sunk three Turkish vessels in the Black Sea.

The destroyed vessels were a steamer of 2,500 tons, a sailing ship of 1,500 tons and a steamer of 400 tons. All were sunk near Keskent. The Turkish vessels were laden with coal and provisions which they were transporting to Constantinopis.

RUSSIAN REPORT.

"Friday morning our cruisers encountered during a fog two light cruisers of the enemy and some torpedo boats on a line parallel with Oestergarn lighthouse, on the east coast of the Island of Gothland, and engaged in battle with them.

"A German cruiser, at 9 a. m., being badly damaged, lowered its flag and ran ashore. The other cruiser and torpedo boats retired.

"At ten a. m. our squadron encountered the armored cruiser Roon, one light cruiser and one torpedo boat. The battle was renewed.

"At 10:30 a. m. the enemy began to retire southward. During his retreat the enemy, who had now been joined by another light cruiser, was attacked by our cruisers. The enemy's warship then died hurriedly and the pursuit ceased at 11:30 a. m.

"After the battle our squadron was unsuccessfully attacked by submarine. The damage inflicted upon our cruisers was insignificant."

RUSY IN BLACK SEA.

"A Russian submarine in the Black Sea torpedoed and sank a steamship of 2500 tons and set fire to and sank a sailer of 1300 tons as well as a small steamer of 400 tons near Keskem. These vessels were laden with coal and foodstuffs.

"The submarine shelled another steamer moored near the shore. Several coal-laden barges, towed by tugs, were driven ashore.

Nea the entrance to the Bosphorus the submarine began an action with a small schooner armed with a gun and rifles. After an exchange of shot from machine guns and rifles the schooner fled inshore. The other small vessels of a similar type also fled to the coast."

TEUTONS PRESS ON TOWARD IVANGOROD

AUSTRIAN HEADQUARTERS IN GALICIA, via Vienna, Berlin and Amsterdam, July 3.—Rapid strides by the Austro-German forces along the Vistula River have brought them to a point only thirty-three miles from Ivangorod. The Russian defence appears to be growing steadily weaker and the indications now are that the great Russian fortress on the Vistula will be besieged within a short time.

Having captured Josefow, the Teutonic troops are pressing forward toward Kamien on the east bank of the Vistula, while other forces are moving northward on the west bank. Josefow was taken in a night attack after the Austro-German troops had crossed the Wyznica, five miles from its junction with the Vistula.

The crossing was effected under a heavy fire from Russian machine guns but when the Teuton troops captured these they found they were manned by only a handful of men, the main Russian forces in that region having withdrawn.

That Ivangorod will fall without a great struggle was the prediction made today by Austrian officers. Reports have reached Austrian headquarters that the Russians have withdrawn practically all their supplies from Ivangorod and sent many of the guns to Warsaw, keeping only enough to delay the Austro-German advance, while the Czar's troops are concentrated for the defence of Warsaw.

That German troops have captured 1,630 Russian officers and 626,06 men in the fighting from May 2 to June 27 is the claim made in a semi-official statement made today.

Also that the Germans are believed to have captured 300 field guns, 770 machine guns and war material which cannot yet be calculated.

EVELYN THAW IN FIVE OF HER VERY LATEST POSES

Evelyn Thaw is often as changeable in her moods as in her photographs. These five recent ones show her amazing transformations.

EVELYN THAW IS REPORTED IN CANADA

NEW YORK, July 3.—A report was received here today that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw had fled from Chateauguay Lake to Canada, to escape testifying against her husband, Harry K. Thaw, at his sanity trial Tuesday.

This was followed a few hours later by another report, which stated that she was very sick and that she would be unable to attempt the journey to this city.

Deputy Attorney-General Frank Cook spent much of the day in communication with the process server who subpoenaed Mrs. Thaw and induced her to take the State's money for witness fees and transportation.

The most definite statement that can be obtained here is that she will leave the lake for New York, on July 5, in time to reach here to go on the stand Tuesday.

She has requested Deputy Attorney General Cook to make her ordeal as short as possible. However, if she takes the stand, John B. Stanchfield, Thaw's attorney, will put her through an extended examination and make her bare all the secrets of her life.

Mrs. Thaw will be carefully guarded by State officials while she is in this city and an effort will be made to keep her whereabouts a secret.

It is rumored that the State has a surprise in store for Thaw and his counsel when the trial is resumed Tuesday in several New Hampshire witnesses who are expected to offset Thaw's witness from that State. Many of them were in New York today, but Mr. Cook guarded their identity and whereabouts.

In Ludlow Street Jail today Thaw appeared confident and almost happy despite the fact that yesterday was a bad one for him.

"It is all going my way," he said.

Armenian Not Under Requisition

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The steamship Armenian, sunk by a German submarine with loss of American lives, was not under British government requisition when she sailed from Newport News, June 17, with mules for the British army, but prior to this voyage she had bee requisitioned by the London government. Although the British requisition terminated before her final trip, the Armenian had not yet been put back on the regular sailing list of the Leyland line, owners of the ship. "In his own words he did not want to give up without a fight, and he only stopped Lis ship when twelve or thirteen men fell dead.

"The submarine acted in strict accordance with international law throughout."

ITALIANS TAKE TOLMINO, KEY TO ISONZO

By International News Service.

PARIS, July 3, 5:15 a. m.—The Italians have occupied the village of Tolmino, which was garrisoned by 30,000 Austrians, on the Isonzo north of Goriste, according to a Rome dispatch.

The Austrians still hold neighboring farms and are bombarding the village. Italian heavy artillery has been mounted for use against the forts. Tolmino is the key to the Isonzo valley.

By BRIXTON D'ALLAIRE,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

ROME, July 3.—While the official reports from Italian headquarters are confined to details of local successes by the troops of King Victor Emmanuel, Italian correspondents at the front today send dispatches in which they declare that the Austrian offensive on the Plava-Gradisca line has been completely broken.

"For the first time since the Italians began their campaign of invasion," says one, "large forces have been stopped. The Austrians have been driven back everywhere with severe casualties, losing strong positions at Plava and a lot of ground."

Another correspondent reports the capture of Austrian positions and numerous prisoners on the Plava and the Austrians fighting desperately but failing to stem the Italian advances.

A despatch from Udine says that Italian aviators blew up several ammunition convoys, cutting the enemy off from much-needed supplies.

Heavy losses have been inflicted upon the Austrians in the fighting in the Carnic Alps, northwest of Marborghetto. The Austrians delivered fierce counter-attacks in an effort to retake the Elder trenches near Pioskenpass, but all were repulsed.

An artillery duel is in progress all along the Carnic front, it is officially announced.

TURKS CLAIM GAIN AT DARDANELLES

By LUDWIG VON KLEIN.
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3.—News of terrific fighting on the Gallipoli peninsula, in which the Turks repulsed all attacks of the Anglo-French allies and captured two lines of trenches, is contained in the following official statement issued by the Ottoman War Office today:

"On the Dardenelles front, in the northern sector of Avi Burnu, on Tuesday there was an exchange of fire. In the southern sector of Sedd-El-Bahr, fighting continued all day. The enemy aimed at the investment of our right wing and delivered an attack supported by violent artillery fire, but it failed, owing to our counter-attacks.

"North of Avi Burnu, on Tuesday night, we repulsed the enemy's attacks against our central entrenchments. Our right flank attacked and captured two lines of the enemy's trenches, one situated behind the other.

"On the same night, north of Sedd-El-Bahr, we attacked the enemy's left wing, the fighting lasting all night. We penetrated several trenches and maintained all our positions. The battle did not come to an end until sunrise.

"All day Wednesday there was fighting on the right and left wings and south of Sedd-El-Bahr. Our attacks proceeded very favorably.

U. S. Food Exports Nearly Doubled

WASHINGTON, July 3.—Foodstuffs valued at $724,980,006 were exported by the United States during the eleven months ending July 1. Wheat formed the biggest item in foodstuffs sent abroad.

WILSON TO RETURN FOR GERMAN NOTE

CORNISH, N. H., July 3.—Official information from Washington came to President Wilson that Germany's reply to the last American note on submarine warfare may be expected about July 5. In consequence the President expects to return to Washington July 9 or 10 in order to consider the note with his Cabinet. The President is hopeful that the German reply will be favorable.

Word also came to the President from Washington that officials there are not greatly disturbed over the Armenian incident, and unless new facts arise in the official investigation now being conducted, the sinking of the vessel is not expected to complicate seriously the negotiations with Germany over submarine warfare.

The question of selecting a man to succeed Secretary Lansing as counselor of the State Department has been considered, but it was understood that the President will not reach a final decision until after his return to Washington. Former Governor Baldwin of Connecticut and Mitchell Palmer, former member of Congress from Pennsylvania and now a Judge of the United States Court of Claims, are understood to be among the men under consideration.

BECKER TO LIFT VEIL ON GRAFT 'MACHINE'

NEW YORK, July 2.—Charles Becker, erstwhile commander of the "strong arm" squad and now in the shadow of the electric chair, has decided, according to his counsel, to "squeal."

Regardless of whether the decision will affect his fate, announced his attorney, Martin T. Manton, today, "Becker will reveal the names of those higher up. Before he goes to the electric chair he will make public the names of the six police officials who shared the money which he got from gamblers and other evildoers. He will expose the whole system."

Governor Whitman, whose crusade against the gangs while District Attorney entangled Becker in the prosecution of the murderers of Herman Rosenthal, and in whose hands now, as Governor, rests Becker's fate, declared today that it was now too late to save the police lieutenant by any such revelations.

WHITMAN HAS NAMES.

The names of the six men "higher up," not all of whom are civil servants, have already been revealed to Governor Whitman, according to Becker's attorney, Manton. The indications I have received from the Governor," said Mr. Manton, "are that he desires no investigation of the Becker case."

Governor Whitman, however, while admitting that the revelations promised for the public, had already been made to him, declined to give out the names of those "higher up" accused in Becker's graft confession.

The names of any persons Martin T. Manton, Becker's counsel, may have mentioned as having been involved in graft collections, must be given out by Mr. Manton, if it all, announced the Governor.

Meanwhile Bourke Cockran, Manton's law partner, is preparing a writ of error to be presented to the United States Supreme Court, in a final attempt to snatch the "strong arm squad's" former leader from the electric chair. The three errors set forth as violation of Becker's rights are:

2—Refusal of Justice Giegerich of the Supreme Court to grant a hearing on the application for change of venue, and

3—Impairment of Becker's constitutional right to have an unbiased mind pass finally on his case by reason of the fact that the District Attorney who prosecuted the case is now Governor with pardoning power.

Although strenuous efforts are this being made to save Becker, he himself, according to Mr. Manton, has about given up all hope.

"I am convinced," said Mr. Manton, "that Charles Becker has at out made up his mind to die. He says that he would like to do something before he dies so that other men could not be convicted as he was, on the testimony of criminals.

"I am sure that he will give the public the information that he gave to Governor Whitman in their talk last Thursday. I wish I could publish the names myself. I could do it now, in the interests of justice. The Governor ought to do it, but, of course, that is his business.

"But Becker will make a clean breast of the grafting. He will issue a statement, not for money, not even in the hope of saving his own life, but for the purpose of justly dividing the guilt of graft.

"He doesn't want to die, if die he must, and leave on earth a set of men who might use others as he has been used."

ONE OF "BIG SIX" DEAD.

Six officials, Mr. Manton clearly intimated, shared in the large sums banked by Becker in 1912 and 1913, in the period when the "strong arm squad" was raiding and manipulating evidence to suit its chief, Becker.

One of these officials—"the most higher up"—according to Manton, is dead. That Becker had so little saved when arrested is advanced as proof that his "collections" were for superiors.

Bridgie Webber, whose testimony his former attorney, Hurlburd T. Mackbuld, declared was "framed" to get Becker, today issued a vigorous denial of the charge.

"Marshall is crazy," he said. "He lies, if he says I gave him any information regarding Becker. I have not seen him since Becker's first trial. It was while I was in the room that some of the family sent Marshall to me. We talked for a couple of hours, but not once did I mention Becker's name. As soon as I was in a position to, I hired Max D. Steuer as my counsel."

WILLARD URGES 'CLEAN BOXING'

By JESS WILARD.

(Copyright, 1915, by A. Merritt. All Rights Reserved.)

"The poor sucker dropped $12,000 on the fake fight. He tried to cheat and got cheated."

EVERY State in the Union ought to have a boxing commission.

You can't kill the sport, so why not kill the ugly and degrading parts of it, and let the good stay?

That's what New York did. Some of the best men in the State went before the Legislature and said, "Boxing is all right in itself. It teaches boys to love skill and strength and health. It's a great temperance sermon. Pull up the weeds and let the plant grow."

The law passed provided for responsible clubs, medical examination of fighters, age limits, and said that all bouts must be ten rounds only, and without decisions, so as to kill betting.

I think the New York Boxing Commission didn't treat me fair when it barred me for a year, but it didn't change my opinion that it was a good thing. Good for the fighters and good for the public as well.

Betting was what gave boxing its bad name. Tin-horn gamblers, looking for suckers, have been the curse of my business. In order to win money they bribed fighters and bought referees. Before they had a commission, more than half the big fights in New York were rotten fakes arranged beforehand.

I don't bet and I think the man that does bet is a fool. You are trying to get something for nothing, and that's dishonest to begin with. The people that win at gambling are people who make it a business.

It is a business in which you've got to stack the cards, load the dice, set traps in the stock market and cut electric wires in the roulette wheel, or arrange for the jockeys to let a certain horse win. This is plain stealing. The man who does it is the lowest sort of thief. Yet if you don't act the thief, you LOSE.

When I was a youngster out West there was a gang of crooks in Carthage, Mo., who made a business of trimming suckers with fake fights and fake races. This Boatwright gang would sometimes spend a year framing up for a "fall guy," because they only picked wealthy men.

A wealthy cattleman from my neighborhood lost $12,000 at a crack. It was told everywhere as a great joke, but I reckon his wife and children didn't see anything funny in it. The gang laid for him in St. Louis, and got him acquainted with a fighter that we'll call Spike.

Every time he'd visit St. Louis they'd wine him and dine him, and tell him how they'd just cleaned up $25,000 on Spike. On one visit Spike got alone with him and put up a great story about being sore on his rich backers.

"I've won a half-million for 'em," he said, "and they don't give me anything but small change. Now I like you. I think you're a square guy. So I'm going to make a little proposition to you, old sport. I'm matched to fight Kid Doyle. See? I can whip him with one hand tied, and my bunch knows it. Now listen. You bet on Doyle, and I'll lay down. See?"

The old cattleman fell for it. He drew $10,000 in cash and went outside St. Louis to where a ring had been pitched in a barn. He bet the $10,000. Then Spike came to him and said he wouldn't go through with the deal unless he got his share in advance. So he made the sucker cough up $2,000 more.

The fight began. In the very first round Spike hit Doyle on the side of the head and knocked him down. Doyle rolled over and made out like he couldn't get up. The referee counted ten and gave the fight to Spike.

Of course, the old sucker howled, but what good did it do? He was trying to pull off a swindle himself, and he got swindled. That's all. He was just an amateur thief going up against professional thieves.

Baseball is the great national game because they've never allowed betting at the games. Also it's almost impossible to bribe enough players to get a game "thrown," and your gambler won't bet unless he's sure of winning.

Probably the most disgraceful fake in the history of the American ring was the time when Sharkey won over Fitzsimmons on a foul. The bout took place in San Francisco, and Wyatt Earp, a bad man and a gun-fighter, was picked as referee.

Everybody knew that old Bob could lick the Sailor. All the suckers bet on Fitz. But it was decided that the "wise money" was down on Sharkey. On the night of the fight some friends warned Fitz that some crooked deal was on and told him not to give any body blows at all.

For seven rounds old Bob beat Sharkey to a pulp. He lammed at him with rights and lefts, and worked in and out like a street. He kept all his punches above the neck and the Sharkey crowd got wilder and wilder.

In the eighth round Fitz put over a right hand smash to the jaw. Sharkey fell to the floor and clasped his hands to his head and started in to groaning.

"Foul!" yelled Wyatt Earp. "Sharkey wins on a foul."

The crowd rushed forward with a wild yell, but Earp threw his hand in the direction of his gun and the crowd got pretty quiet. The next time they met Fitzsimmons knocked out the sailor in two rounds.

While I was in training for Johnson I remember looking over some ring records and saying something about the long list of knockouts after Kid McCoy's name. Some of the fellows began to laugh, and then they told me how many of them happened.

The Kid would send a couple of fighters to a town, who would at once start to challenging each other. They would fight, and one of them would win by a mile. Then the winner would get local backing, and say that he was ready for any of the champions. Along would come McCoy, the house would be packed and the Kid would drop his man with a punch and move on to the next town.

The fight between Peter Maher and Mike Morrissey, pulled off in 1905, was the fake that stopped all boxing in New York for a good long while. Of all the raw work in the ring it was the rawest.

Morrissey was a keeper in a Brooklyn insane asylum and some gamblers picked him out as a good man for an "Irish champion." They took him to Boston, and in a little while the papers announced that Morrissey had just arrived from Ireland, and was ready to meet any of the champions for the glory of the Emerald Isle.

He was matched with Peter Maher and taken down to Long Island to train. Mike was so bad that the featherweight trainer used to whip him every day. But his gambler backers kept filling the papers with stories about his strength and skill until they had a lot of suckers believing that Morrissey was the greatest fighter that had ever walked.

The night of the fight it was all they could do to make the big slob enter the ring. He was scared to death. The Lenox Athletic Club was packed to the doors, and hundreds of people were betting on Morrissey.

At last they pushed and pulled him in, and the gong rang for the battle to begin. Morrissey stood up with his hands down, mouth wide open. Maher walked over, looked at him a minute, and then fetched him a light clip on the ear with his left hand. Down went Morrissey.

"Get up," yelled the referee.

"Get up is it?" bawled Morrissey, as he shot his big fellow kill me."

"Then I'll count you out."

"Go ahead," said Morrissey, still on his hands and knees. "I'll not get up until that big scoundrel goes away."

The fight lasted just sixteen seconds, and if it hadn't been for the police, the crowd would have lynched Morrissey, manager and seconds.

Sometimes I think that gambling is almost as bad as whisky. It makes people almost as crazy, and drives them to do the same desperate things. New Orleans and San Francisco stopped horse racing because they found that the racetracks made thieves.

Clerks stole money from the till, cashiers robbed the safe, and trusted employes of every kind turned into embezzlers to get money to play the ponies with. Every meet meant a lot of suicides and disaster for hundreds of families.

It's usually the case, however, that gambling and drinking go together. When the sucker loses he takes whisky to make him forget his losses. When he's got the whisky in him he thinks it all right to take the boss's money, for he's sure that he can win and then he'll put it back.

And they never win! Gambling and whisky have done more to ruin paupers' graves than anything else. I don't drink, and I don't bet.

(Tuesday Willard will tell how he went to the coast and lost a fight to Gunboat Smith by being too good-tempered.)

GERMAN REPLY EXPECTED ON JULY 8 OR 9

By THEODORE TILLER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

WASHINGTON, July 3.—The German reply to the last American note on submarine warfare is expected Thursday or Friday of next week and it now is practically assured that the Armenian incident will not bring eleventh-hour complications to the pending diplomatic negotiations.

The State Department today still awaited complete official reports on the sinking of the Armenian by a German submarine, but preliminary reports are such that officials here, as well as President Wilson at Cornish, N. H., are understood to be convinced that no aggravating questions are likely to arise from the incident. The now established fact that the Armenian did her best to avoid capture and the admission that she was engaged in Admiralty business of Great Britain, carrying a cargo of contraband practically removes, it is believed here, the possibility of complaint from this government.

Although it is not the disposition of the United States to treat lightly the loss of American lives under any circumstances, it is admitted privately in official circles that all the circumstances surrounding the destruction of the Armenian give Germany excellent grounds for justification in the event of representations from the United States.

Present indications are that the Armenian incident will not complicate the greater issue of submarine warfare.

The destruction of the Armenian, however, has caused increased concern among officials of this government regarding the disposition of British vessels to run from capture and to make false use of the flag of the neutrals, especially the Stars and Stripes.

By using the flags of neutrals, it is insisted, Great Britain increases the danger of attack upon genuine neutral vessels and the disposition of British vessels to run away, rather than submit to capture is another thing which caused German submarines to shoot and then investigate.

It is regarded as likely that this government may make representations to Great Britain on this subject in its forthcoming note on British interference with shipping.

Coal Goes Up 25 Cents a Ton

The retail price of coal has been advanced twenty-five cents a ton on practically all grades by leading Boston dealers in response to an increase in the wholesale price. Another jump is due about September 1, as the wholesale prices continue to advance ten cents a month through the Summer until an increase of fifty cents a ton over the March price is reached. These are the normal Summer changes. On the new scale Pocahontas coal is selling today at $8.75 a ton retail, chestnut and Shamokin $7.75, and egg and stove $7.50, furnace $6.75 and pea $5.75.

GENERAL DIAZ IS DEAD IN PARIS

PARIS, July 3.—General Porfirio Diaz, eighty-five, former President of Mexico, is dead here. He had been in failing health since reaching Europe four years ago, after his resignation from the presidency of Mexico, following the successful Madero revolution.

General Diaz's wife, Senora Carmen Romero Rubio Diaz, and their son, Porfirio Diaz, Jr., and the latter's wife were at the bedside when the end came.

Owing to the troubled state in Mexico it has been judged impossible to send the body home with all that ceremony which would have befitted one of the greatest figures in Mexican history.

Death was brought about by failure of the heart, which was weakened by a severe attack of grippe last year. His illness also left him almost blind. Nevertheless, he was accustomed to walk out daily during the past Spring in the Bois de Boulogne.

General Diaz lived here in the greatest simplicity, occupying a modest apartment.

General Diaz began to fail rapidly about three weeks ago, and his death was not unexpected owing to his advanced age and failing health.

He was born in 1830. His family were of old Spanish stock. Left fatherless at three, he was educated with the intention of becoming a priest, but he eventually turned to law and then at the outbreak of the war with the United States turned to a military career.

He served throughout that struggle and after peace was declared he made a study of military science. He and one other were the only two in the country who dared openly oppose the continuation of Santa Anna's dictatorship. His execution was ordered, but he escaped and joined Herrera's revolt.

He speedily made a reputation as a soldier, and as a brigadier-general he was the chief thorn in the side of the French forces, when, taking advantage of the Civil War in the United States, they attempted to place Archduke Maximilian of Austria on the throne of a Mexican empire.

Diaz harried the enemy constantly, and in June, 1867, captured Mexico City with his forces. On the re-establishment of the republic he was unsuccessful as a candidate for President, but in 1877 he was elected to fill the unexpired term of fugitive President Lerdo. His last and eighth election was in July, 1910.

THE EASIEST WAY

To get the maximum amount of pleasure out of your money is to own an auto. Lots of good cars are listed in the "Used Car" columns of the Boston AMERICAN.

MISS ANNIE HOHMANN, of the 16-year-old girl, brought home from New York with mother's "star boarder."

NEW HAVEN HAS MADE $1,547,254

The report of New Haven Railroad Company for the eleven months ending May 31, just issued, shows a marked financial improvement, and gives a hint in figures of a return to prosperity of old.

From a deficit for the corresponding period ending May 31, 1914, of $1,297,903.52, a net corporate income of $1,547,354.97 is shown. The mileage of road operated is less than last year by 47.18.

The net corporate income, the report says, represents the amount available for payment of floating debts, additions, improvements necessary, but unproductive or only partially productive, like new stations.

ALIENIST REPORTS ON EMERY'S SANITY

Harris Emery, who returned from New York to face the police charge of abducting Annie Hohmann, sixteen, of No. 47 East Lenox street, the daughter of his landlady, is believed to be of unsound mind. Dr. Anderson, alienist of the probation department, will report the result of his examination to Judge Creed in the Municipal Court today.

When Emery was arraigned before Judge Creed he appeared dazed and asked to be shown where his mother was seated. Inspector Lourdin told him his mother was not in the court room. "Then there must be something wrong," said Emery, "my mother never deserted me before."

Miss Hohmann, whom Emery is charged with abducting, is ill at home over the disappointment, she says, of being brought home like a baby, and just when she had secured a position in a candy factory in New York at wages that would have helped support her mother. Both she and Emery deny any wrongdoing. The girl was located in New York by the Society for the Care of Girls after her disappearance had been reported by her mother.

According to Mrs. Annie Hohmann, Emery's landlady, her daughter became infatuated with Emery. Emery is twenty-six and is said to be separated from his wife, a burlesque actress.

Eighth Regiment Gets Imaginary Ammunition Train

Today the Eighth Regiment will manoeuvre toward Andover and camp there for the night.

Although wet and bedraggled, the officers of the regiment deny stories of wholesale desertions and say the Eighth was never in better condition.

The last problem handled was the capture of an imaginary trainload of ammunition at Georgetown, in which the regiment defeated the Brown Army under Major Elliot.

Checks in Wrong Bank Is Charge

Eugene H. Arnold, thirty-three years old, will appear in court today charged with larceny of four checks to the amount of $1,622.40. Arnold, it is alleged, was a friend of Eva M. Bartlett of West Brookline street. She charges, according to the police, that she withdrew deposits which she had in Springfield banks and asked Arnold to deposit them in the Old Colony Trust Company. It is charged that he deposited the money in another bank, in his own name.

It Can't Rain Too Hard for This Pet Cat

Joseph Lowney, attache in the office of Mayor Benjamin F. Haines of Medford, tells a new one. Joe has a cat—and if there's anything that tabby can't do, he likes to hear about it. In the height of the storm this cat astonished the Lowney family by its sudden liking for the wet. In spite of the driving rain, it made frequent trips to the roof of the Lowney home in Washington street, to return dripping wet, but licking its chops and apparently in the seventh cat heaven of delight. In spite of the wet, Joe decided to investigate. He trailed Tabby to the roof, and made loldly through puddles, retrieve something from a pool in the corner of the roof, and actually squat right down in the water and eat. The torrential rain had washed bird nests, birds and all into this pool, and just as soon as Tabby could make room for another, she would trot back to the roof and get away with another drowned sparrow. Not ask Joe about it—the roof is there yet to prove it. Also the cat.

Miles Won't Give Rum K. O. with John L.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 3. General Nelson A. Miles, famous warrior, scheduled to preside over one of the most important sessions of the great convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America here next week, has refused to appear if John L. Sullivan, another famous fighter, is to have any part in the program.

Sullivan's acceptance has not been definitely given, worried leaders said, and a serious controversy may be providentially averted. A decision, however, will rest with the board of directors of the cause, which convenes at the Hotel Chalfonte next Monday.

Aviator M'Gee Hurt in 1,000-Foot Fall

PAWTUCKET, July 3.—A telegram received from Jack McGee, a Pawtucket aviator, says he met with an accident while flying 1,000 feet high at Smiths Falls, Canada, yesterday, receiving a broken arm and several body bruises. He is said to be resting comfortably at the City Hospital in that place.

WILSON SPURNED BRYAN-DUMBA ACT

WASHINGTON, July 3.—A report that William J. Bryan, when Secretary of State, was willing to compromise the Lusitania matter with Dr. Dumba, the Austrian Ambassador, on terms widely different from those stated in President Wilson's note on the subject, was circulated today in diplomatic circles.

It was also further asserted that it was this alleged willingness of Mr. Bryan to compromise that gave Ambassador Dumba the impression which he promptly cabled to Berlin to the effect that Wilson's note was simply intended for "American consumption" and that Germany need not take it seriously.

From an authentic source the story of the meeting of Bryan and Dumba was given as substantially as follows:

1—Ambassador Dumba, ostensibly acting as mediator between the United States and Germany, the German Ambassador keeping in the background, presented to Mr. Bryan an agreement in writing containing these provisions:

1—That Germany would discontinue submarine attacks on vessels carrying American passengers, providing such vessels did not carry contraband.

2—That President Wilson issue a proclamation forbidding Americans from traveling on any vessels carrying contraband.

3—That the United States authorities take action to have both classes of vessels take on such distinguishing characteristics that one could not possibly be mistaken for the other.

The moment, however, that this alleged agreement was brought to the attention of the President he repudiated it with the utmost emphasis, it was said.

F. of L., has arrived in Boston from Albany in an endeavor to have the members of the Italian local which seceded from the American Federation of Labor and formed an I. W. W. union come back to the American Federation of Labor fold.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editer

Stocks were irregular and the price range was narrow at the opening. Some important issues were unchanged. There was no inclination to make extensive commitments on the eve of a holiday. A spirit of caution prevailed. Nothing which will give the stock market an impetus is expected to happen within a few days. The German note is awaited with more interest than apprehension. As regards the future, the feeling is bullish in banking and speculative circles. Good crops have not been discounted and while business in general is not normal the belief is strong that it will improve. A great deal of stress is put upon the extent of liquidation. Broadly considered it is thought that values and trade have touched bed rock and that any change must be for the better.

EARLY TREND DOWNWARD.

Soon after the start most stocks declined a little. St. Paul soon at the lowest price this year. Selling by foreigners is said to be the cause. Harvest prospects along the line of this road are good, and it should increase its earnings. So far as can be observed, Americans are holding on to home securities, but the British are disposing of our securities to reinvest in the new war loan. They are actuated by patriotism and not by investment judgment. The assimilative power of American stock markets at present is remarkable. It indicates that financially the United States is the Colossus among nations.

Quiet Fourth for Winchester Dogs

Winchester dogs will celebrate the Fourth by wearing muzzles or leashes whenever they get out. The town Selectmen have ordered that for three months, beginning Monday, no dog may run at large without muzzle or leash. Reports of rabies from various places caused this precaution, though no case is known in Winchester. Police Chief W. R. McIntosh is instructed to enforce the order.

TOUR CONTEST TO END TODAY

The Boston AMERICAN'S great California Tour Contest comes to an end today. The last vote coupon appears in today's AMERICAN. There now remains only the seven days allowed for the counting and tabulating of the last Series, "G," coupons and the final announcement of the fortunate winners.

The thousands interested in the contest naturally feel anxious to know just to what extent their efforts may be rewarded, and the AMERICAN will expedite, in every way possible, the counting, tabulating and checking of the votes, so that the final announcement of the winners may be made in the Sunday AMERICAN, July 11th.

All votes must be received at the Contest Department, No. 3 Winthrop Square, before 5 p. m., on July 10, and if sent by mail they must bear a postmark not later than that hour.

This gives the Contest Department's staff little less than one week for the counting, tabulating and checking of the votes, and it is a tremendous task.

Twenty-five candidates will be awarded trips to the California Exposition and return and cash awards to the total amount of $1,250.

To the hundreds of contestants the AMERICAN extends congratulations for their splendid work in securing votes.

The winners will start on their Pacific Coast tour from Boston on July 24, at 11:30 a. m., from the North Station for Montreal and Chicago.

LEONARD READY TO START TODAY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

An effort will be made this afternoon to pull off a double-header at Fenway Park. No attempt was made to pull off anything yesterday or the day before, rain putting such a damper on things that Mr. Kelly, the well known grounds-keeper, didn't even mix any of the secret preparation he puts on the chalklines.

But today, it being Saturday when large crowds are to be expected if the weather shows any inclination to be decent, Mr. Kelly will have the grounds ready if there is half a chance of getting action on the ball field.

The sorely tried pitchers of the Red Sox and the Mackmen will have had two full days of rest and there ought to be some good pitching—at least on the Red Sox side. Connie's pitchers do not seem to amount to a great deal, but Connie says he has hopes. As for our boys they have no ability, but most of them also have sore arms. Connie's pitchers have no sore arms, but they do not possess any great amount of ability.

It is hinted in Red Sox circles that Dutch Leonard is ready to work again if it is to be hoped that the celebrated left wing of the Fresno fruit grower has come around. It will mean a lot to the Sox. If Leonard works in one of the games today it would not be surprising to see Ray Collins pitch the other one. Shore and Gregg are also available.

Connie says he is going to give Bruno Haas, the former Worcester Academy boy, another chance at the Carrigan tribe. Mr. Haas showed considerable wildness last Wednesday and our boys will expect some more of it if he goes in the box today. Wyckoff and Crowell are held in reserve. Connie is likely to use three or four pitchers per game, it all depending on how wild his boys are.

The Washington team will be here for a series on Monday. After this series ends the Red Sox will take to the road, making a circuit of the Western cities. It will be a crucial invasion.

Jack Barry to Play at Second for Red Sox

Jack Barry, shortstop of the Athletics since the middle of the 1908 campaign, a New England born and reared youth, is now the property of the Red Sox. Magnate Lannin made the big purchase, and if there's anything doing at Fenway Park this afternoon Jack will be in the middle of it.

Manager Carrigan said this morning that he intended putting Barry to work at the keystone sack right away. What's more, Jack will probably tarry at that position, as he has had more experience than Scott, and "General Bill" will doubtless consider it advisable to have the ex-Athletic go to work at a new station and keep youngster Scott at his old stand.

BRAVES IN TWO GAMES TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—As the Braves and Phillies were unable to get in their matinee yesterday, owing to it raining a la Boston in this staid city, the two classy clubs are undefined to clash in a double-header on the Huntington avenue green this afternoon.

It is up to the clan of Stallings to win two decisions or it is to gain a draw with the Phillies in the series. Tyler and Rudolph are almost bound to take turns doing the heavy work for the Braves. Both twirlers have been showing good form the last several weeks and Boss Stallings is extremely hopeful the two desired conquests are going to materialize.

Pat Moran will probably make his selections between Rixey, Demaree and Chalmers. Alexander has only been in one game this week—he beat the Braves in the opening contest of the series—so can be used for rescue work should matters go wrong.

Joe Connolly, injured in Wednesday's game when a hard-hit drive from Crawford's bat hopped up and struck him in the face, is down to get in both games.

BIKERS IN BAND TO BEAT LINART

TONIGHT'S RACE CARD.

ONE-HOUR MOTOR-PACED RACE—Victor Linart, Antwerp, Belgium, vs. Elmer Collins, Lynn, vs. Leon Didier, Paris, France, vs. Georges Seres, Paris, France.

AMATEUR AND PROFESSIONAL EVENTS.

Another attempt will be made to lower the colors of Victor Linart at the Revere Cycle Track tonight, when the Spring Belgian tackles Elmer Collins, Leon Didier and Georges Seres in his second one-hour motor-paced race of the week.

Though he has met them all, Linart has yet to find a rider who can show him the way on the Beach oval. He has fooled the wise ones who predicted that he would crack under the strain of competition. As a matter of fact he has showed best when the battle has been brought home to him.

The Belgian is in for the tussle of his career this evening. Didier still insists that he can lick him; and Collins has just come out with a statement that he will beat Linart here just as he conquered him in New York. Seres is a rider that believes in letting deeds talk for themselves.

As much as a favorite as the Belgian is, it's a sure shot that a majority of the Revere "fans" would rather see Collins win. Elmer has made a wonderful "come back," and another victory over Linart would be a big boost to his favor.

Willard Nearly Knocked Out

One man, a San Francisco motorman named Miller, very nearly put Jess Willard out in a four-round bout. The future champion took him as a joke and trained on pies, cakes and figs with cream. Result, no wind. The decision was a draw.

Willard tells all about it in Tuesday's instalment of his autobiography in the AMERICAN.

He also discusses two "raw deals" he got from referees, one in his fight with Gunboat Smith and the other with a lad name McMahon.

FITZ FINED $50 FOR DIAMOND ROW

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—Eddie Fitzpatrick of the Braves has been fined $50 by President Tener. While coaching at third base Thursday Fitzpatrick was ordered off the field by Umpire Byron. Fitz took his time in going to the clubhouse and Umpire Eason held the watch on him. The offence for which he was fined was for delaying the game.

GALLANT TO TRY FOR A KNOCKOUT

By JACK CONWAY.

GILBERT GALLANT will today complete strenuous training for his twelve-round bout with Joe Rivera, which will be held at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night. The Orient lightweight has been working out with Mike Glover and a half dozen rugged boxers. He is in splendid physical condition and will not experience any difficulty in reducing to 133 pounds, which is the weight the men have agreed to make for the match.

A victory over Rivera would mean a great deal to Gallant. It would put him in line for bouts with the world's leading lightweights. Charley White, who clashes with Freddy Welsh in New York tonight, has been signed to meet "Young" Saylor at the Arena on July 13. The winner of Tuesday's bout may be matched to clash with the victor of the White-Saylor match.

ALEX MLEAN, manager of Gallant, believes his protege will win. In discussing the matter today he said:

"Gallant will try and score a knockout in his contest with Rivera. I realize that Joe is a great fighter. He proved his worth in his tussles with Willie Ritchie, Ad Wolgast, Joe Mandot and Leach Cross.

"One must not forget, however, that there are few lightweights who have a great deal on Gallant. He is still a youngster in the ring game, but he is today classed with the star men in his boxing class. He is rated so highly that Ad Wolgast recently quit out of a match with him.

"Rivera is a clever boxer and a deadly puncher, but in my opinion Gallant's aggressive style of fighting will prove too much for the Californian. Gill is also a sweet puncher, and do not be a bit surprised if he sends Rivera to the mat for the count with one of his sharp left-hand punches."

FREDDY WELSH and Charley White should furnish a few thrills when they meet in a ten-round bout at the Brighton Beach race track tonight. It will be the third no-decision bout between these two celebrated ring men. Welsh was an easy winner in the other two matches. His remarkable speed and dazzling ring skill enabled him to outpoint the hard-hitting Chicago youth.

They tell us that White has changed his style of fighting since he last met Welsh. It is said that he is more aggressive than he formerly was. Charley displayed plenty of aggressiveness in his battles at the Atlas A. A., but he was not opposed by high-class performers in his engagements at the Arena.

Fresh Favors for Fans

—By H. W. LANIGAN—

Mr. Lannin is the best buyer in baseball. His purchase of Jack Barry, the Athletics' brilliant shortstop, who has been on four championship clubs, hence comes in as exactly the proper party to give the Red Sox that little additional heft they require to catch the White Sox. Barry was twenty-eight years old last April. Hence, he's still really pretty much of a brother. A great fielder and heady player, smart on bases, hep to everything that's embraced in "inside ball" and the best batsman in the world when it comes to laying down the sacrifice bunt with the base-runners in action, Harry cannot help but prove a valuable man for the Red Sox. He's to go in at second, when Carrigan straightens out his family, leaving clever Everett Scott at short. Then, the faithful Wagner will be worth every dollar of his pay merely hanging around and helping Carrigan out in the coaching and directing, and filling out in the active work in emergencies. Mr. Lannin has got to be applauded for his purchase. The owner of the Red Sox is certainly making every possible effort to bring the Johnson gonfalon to Boston.

That's better, much better. After winning five games in a row this week, after hooking on to six out of seven a week ago, the White Sox finally got spanked. Detroit administered said spanking in the second soiree of the series and Messrs. Dubuc, Crawford, Veach, Bush and Baker were the gentlemen to send so much joy in this direction. Dubuc, though stacked by Baker as regards the tingle count, held tight in the pinches; Crawford added one of the two runs by bumping out a happy homer; Veach's double and Bush's one-spot came together and Baker turned back all three Rowlands attempting to pilfer on him.

Now the Red Sox are only five and one-half games out of first place. The margin is not nearly as terrific as it looks, as the difference as regards L. games is but one.

Faber must be reckoned the A. L.'s pitching premier, so far as the 1915 dope goes. Wood, Dubuc, and Boland, the last named the Detroit rookie, who got off to a furrah start for Jennings, but who hasn't been heard from for some six weeks, are the hurlers gaining decisions over Faber. The dates of "Red's" downfalls are April 18, June 7 and July 3. Twice he came to grief in Detroit and once in Boston. So, to date, he has twirled 1,000 ball on Commie's lot. Faber was hit fairly harshly when the Tigers took his taw the first time. But he lost on four hits at Fenway Park and was flopped yesterday on five clouts. So, the young Iowan's mark could be 16-1 easily enough.

Faber is the second White Sox hurler, owning more victories all by himself than Wood, Collins, Leonard and Gregg combined. Bunched, the four Boston boxmen claim a notch of 19-8. Jim Scott's record is 11-3, while the aforesaid mentioned Faber owns the fancy figures of 14-3. But Wood, the baggex of six of his seven frolics, is back in form, though most of his work in the immediate future may be done only in windups; Collins has just bunched two triumphs and Leonard is believed to be ready. So it shouldn't be for long that Faber and Scott have it on our hurlers so vehemently.

Few prettier pitching battles have ever been staged under the big tent than the Plesh-Shaw clash in New York yesterday. Shaw lost on three blows, while Plesh gave but two. A pass, fumble by Neff, when he had a double play in front of him, and hits by Maisel and Pipp—both were scratches—gave the lone count.

The Cubs gained half a length on the marooned Braves. The sweet set-to between Pierce and Harmon was busted in the Dreshahan's half of the ninth on Good's one-spot, a sacrifice and Saier's Texas Leaguer. But for him chuck home by the Hon. Heinie Zim the Pirates would have been blanked.

The Dodgers most kindly made it three straight over the Giants, so our Braves remain ahead of the McGrawites. At that, Wilbert Robinson's family moved up to 15 with Our Boys by virtue of Kid Coombs' shut-out over Rid Mathewson. J Muggsy McGraw got so gay during the matinee that Mal Eason bade him beat it. McGraw sprang a new swat order and it certainly didn't shine. Burns now leads off—that's where Guy of Utica belongs—followed by Robertson. Lobert has been shot down to sixth place.

"Specs" Meadows came back with another starry game for Miller Huggins. The only four-eyed hurler in captivity gave a single hit kakoomining the Reds. Toney finally had a bad day. Groh got spiked by Bescher and Heinie goes on the hospital squad.

Muttering sackers!! Our Braves are tied with the Dodgers in owning the most blackmarks in the N. L.

It wasn't Dick Crutcher's fault Harrisburg had such a good time staging its International league inaugural. The diminutive one, though allowing but two safeties was a loser.

John, Connies, Freds, Jakes, Georges, Franks, and Hughies, have won all the big flags of late years. Out in Chicago they are preparing to cose a Clarence into the circle. The Bills are likewise outside the pale of the list. So, we will slip him in.

WHITE EXPECTS TO STOP WELSH

By ED W. SMITH.

There's one queer angle to this fighting game that never has been touched on to any extent.

No champion in any class ever lost his title in a ten-round no-decision contest.

Yet many a champion has been whipped inside of the ten-round limit. But it always has happened that when the titles changed hands in such cases the bouts always were to have been of longer duration than ten rounds.

Now, just because no champion ever was knocked out by an opponent in a ten-round bout that carried with it a no-decision clause, that is not saying that such a thing is not going to happen.

HOPES FOR KNOCKOUT.

As a matter of fact, Charley White believes he will turn such a trick at the Brighton Beach race track arena tonight. He is to take on Champion Fred Welsh for the third time.

Champions have been bested, some of them time and again, in no decision contests, but of course, that didn't count as long as there was no knockout. In fact, for a time there we heard little excepting that this man or that one had given Fred Welsh a sound trimming in ten rounds at such and such arena. And the fight fan just had to pass over these spots with a little smile, remembering all the time that Welsh still possessed the title, and nothing but a solid swat on the chin could take it away from him.

Some of our champions in the last decade or so were created well inside of ten rounds. Remember, don't you, that one Terry McGovern whipped Pedlar Palmer of England in less than one round at the arena at Tuckahoe, N. Y.? And that was one of the very shortest of all champion-ship battles.

KNOCKOUT MAY COME.

But the knockout of a champion in a ten-round bout is just as liable to happen any time as not. Why not? The conditions are pretty much the same in ten-round battles as they are in those named as twenty or more. The gloves are about the same, the condition of the men is about as good, etc., etc. Therefore, there is no reason why the knockouts shouldn't come. But they don't. It just happens that way, that's all.

That's the reason Charley White is figuring he may grab the title from Welsh tonight. Charley figures that he has nearly upset traditions before and is liable with the wallop he swings, to go all the way through most any time.

He figures, too, that while he didn't do much to Welsh in their first meeting and still less in their second, when he was ill, he is liable to do a whole lot better this time, when he is fighting at his extreme best.

White claims he has changed his whole system of battling now, instead of standing off in a half-fright-ened manner and waiting for the foe to come to him. White now steps in, taking the chance of getting a punch in order to land that old left hook of his.

Double Racing Bill.

FRAMINGHAM, July 3.—With fair weather conditions the management of the short ship harness horse races will card a double program with the 2:12 trotters and 2:09 pacers as the headliners. Racing looked doubtful tonight, but a few hours of sun will put the track in good condition.

Jack Murray Given Release by Giants

NEW YORK, July 3.—Jack Murray, the veteran outfielder of the Giants, has been given his unconditional release by Manager McGraw. Waivers were asked on Murray but no club put in a bid for him.

As Murray has been in the major league more than ten years he is entitled to his unconditional release. On account of the new twenty-one-player limit, the Giants will be compelled to get rid of others of the older players to make room for the youngsters.

Rockland to Have Day at Fenway Park

Rockland is to have a baseball day at Fenway Park, Boston. The date of the outing will be announced just as soon as it can be decided upon, probably some time in August. Plans for the day will be made at a meeting at Knights of Columbus Hall Wednesday night.

The Red Sox team visited Rockland this Spring at the annual minstrel show of the St. Alphonsus Total Abstinence Society, and was given a hearty welcome. The members of the team made many valuable friends and now they want to see them in action on the diamond.

Sound the cymbals for two kinds of independence joy!

Rip things right up the back on the Fourth! Because it's the nation's birthday, and because Prince Albert tobacco has set free men who yearned for the joys of jimmy pipe "packing" and real cigarette makin's—and who shied at tortured tongues and throats! Bang-away like it's freedom's frolic!

Kick-off the covers early. Let the orators pump patriotism into your spirit while you puff P. A. into your smokeappetite! And keep on puffing "P. A. forever" because it's the happiest, the truest tobacco you could wish to jam in a jimmy pipe or roll into a cigarette! The patented process fixes that! And removes the bite and parch! It'll be a regular celebration, via

the national joy smoke

Open up a toppy red bag of P. A. (mighty handy for rollers) or a tidy red tin, like it was a package from home, then you'll know why men smoke Prince Albert and boom Prince Albert from one land's end to the other! Get that independence spirit on the tobacco question!

So, unlimber your jimmy pipes or makin's papers—and fire away! Because, men, Prince Albert will put new ideas of tobacco goodness into your system. Just write it down in your little diary, "Today I started smoking Prince Albert." This is the joy'us time to become pals with P. A and declare yourself for smoke happiness!

A nickel buys Prince Albert in the toppy red bag, 10c for the tidy red tin. P. A. is also sold in handsome pound and half-pound tin humidors—and—in that classy pound crystal-glass humidor with the sponge-moistener top that keeps the tobacco at the high point of perfection—always!

PRESENTLY she seemed to be directly beneath him, looking up into his face. He smiled at her; he couldn't help it. Then she turned her back to him, her face to the others, and she spoke in a gallant, loud voice:

"What has he done?"

A shiver went up and down Tommy's spine. In the name of all that was miraculous that hallucination in white with the gallant voice was really Celestia. Yes. And there, hanging back in the crowd was Professor Stilliter, with his thick glasses, and Freddie the Ferret, Freddie brandishing that big automatic which his father had forbidden him to carry. Celestia was answered with cries from here and there:

"He's a traitor, a spy! He was going to betray us!"

Gunsdorf crept toward her holding in his outstretched hand the fateful telegram.

"We found it on him," he said.

Celestia read the telegram and flung it angrily from her.

"Is that your evidence?"

Gunsdorf shrank from her. She stepped toward him, and he had to look her in the eyes.

"Do you believe that he is a spy?"

Gunsdorf's chin dropped upon his breast and he began to shake his head slowly from side to side. The crowd began to murmur with astonishment.

"Then why did you accuse him?"

"I—he," mumbled Gunsdorf.

"Why in the name of justice?"

"He—he is a ravisher."

"A what?"

"He attacked a defenceless woman. It was to shield her reputation that I said his life was a spy. In any case, he deserved to be hanged."

"He attacked a defenceless woman!" exclaimed Celestia, and she laughed with a kind of cold scorn.

Mrs. Gunsdorf crept slowly forward.

"It had to come out," she cried suddenly, "he attacked me, if you got to know."

"He attacked you?"

"I swear it by"——

There was a battle of eyes.

"Look at me! Look at me!" exclaimed Celestia. "If you are telling the truth you can surely look at me."

Mrs. Gunsdorf lifted her defeated eyes in one last effort.

"Now tell the truth," said Celestia. "Speak out, so that everyone can hear you."

For a few moments Mrs. Gunsdorf was silent. Then suddenly she lifted her head defiantly and spoke in a loud voice.

"I lied," she said. "He didn't attack me. I loved him and he wouldn't look at me. I trapped him in my room, and locked the door and put the key in my pocket. Then I screamed for help. That's all. I did it because I loved him, and he wouldn't look at me. If he wouldn't look at me, I said, he shouldn't look at anyone —ever. I'd rather he'd be dead. And that's the truth and the whole truth, so help me God."

Then Gunsdorf spoke.

"Cut that man loose," he said. Then he turned to his wife, and very quietly and methodically, but with all his strength, struck her on the point of the jaw, and laid her senseless at his feet. Low murmurs of approval greeted the act.

Meanwhile, the noose had been withdrawn from Tommy Barclay's head and the ropes which bound him had been cut. He came slowly and painfully down the ladder, and stood before Celestia, holding out both his hands to her.

But she did not look at his hands, and only for a moment at him. It was as if she had never seen him before. In the back of the crowd somebody chuckled. It was Professor Stilliter.

"Celestia," pleaded Tommy.

Mrs. Gunsdorf, Under Celestia's Questioning, repents and Saves Tommy from the Mob.

But she would not look at him, and her dark deep eyes began to gather eyes in the crowd, and then she began to speak; began right in the middle of a speech, as was her wont, and spoke to them of justice, and patience, and brotherly love, and scolded them a little for having flown at conclusions, and so nearly stained their souls with innocent blood.

And when she told them quite simply that she had come from Heaven to make the world a better place to live in, those who succeeded in catching a glance of her eyes believed her. And the others kept a dead silence and greatly wondered.

When she had finished, the crowd opened for her, and she passed sweetly and quietly through and vanished after a while, followed only by Freddie the Ferret and Stilliter.

"Stop here!" somebody cried; "she's going to the stockade. We want her with us!"

But nobody made a move to follow her.

Mrs. Gunsdorf raised herself on her hands and moaned. Tommy, all compassion, stepped swiftly forward and helped her to her feet.

His heart ached terribly because Celestia had not spoken to him. He wondered why she had been so cruel.

There were two reasons, Professor Stilliter was the chief one; the extreme good looks of Mrs. Gunsdorf was the other.

The thought of any physical contact, however unwilling on his part, between Tommy and Mrs. Gunsdorf had turned Celestia's not altogether celestial heart to ice in her breast.

A Dreaded Terror

The Centipede Not a Household Pet

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

HIS scientific name is Scutigera Forceps, which seems to mean, in its twisted Latiny, "the shielded, or buckleted, pincher." His everyday name is the house centipede, and that also is tarred with Latin—and with error, too, for he hasn't really got a hundred feet or legs, although he has got enough of them to make anybody jump when they are all fluttering at once, in a maze of motion, like the trembling appendages of an artificial spider formed of wire springs.

A full-grown house centipede, from the ends of his antennæ to the ends of his longest rear pair of legs is about five and a half inches in length, while his breadth, measured in a similar manner, is nearly two inches. But perhaps nine-tenths of the enclosed space is nothing but air.

A centipede is five inches long in the same sense that a wire fence is four feet high. His legs are graduated in length from three-quarters of an inch to two inches and a half. His thin, flat, grayish yellow (a fighting color) body is from an inch to an inch and a half long. There is a fringe of fifteen legs on each side of the body, the hind pair being twice as long as the longest of the others. These legs are furnished with spiny hairs at the joints which make them so much more the repulsive. They move in unison withs wave-like undulation, which also gives you a creepy feeling. The creature's head is relatively large, and furnished with powerful jaws that inflict a painful bite, which may be poisonous, but rarely has a serious effect on human beings.

In houses the beast prefers bathrooms, but sometimes hides behind furniture, and when dislodged darts out with surprising rapidity. "often," says Mr. Marlatt of the Entomological Bureau, "darting directly at inmates of the house, particularly women, evidently with a desire to conceal itself beneath their dresses." It seldom bites unless cornered, and a little ammonia removes the irritation, except in rare cases.

In the tropics centipedes of another species, but externally resembling those found in temperate regions, attain a length of nearly a foot, and their bites are venomous and dangerous. There is a story of a battle with one of these tropical centipedes in Lafcadio Hearn's "Two Years in the French West Indies," which is calculated to "make the hair" of the sensitive reader.

Honest Advice

A correspondent wrote to the editor of a local paper as follows:

"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if some thing is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared. "When the horse is looking all right sell him to some one."

The Star That Will Not Fail

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

FRIENDS may fail you, love prove untrue and those united to you by ties of blood may grievously disappoint. But none of this makes life a thing of desolation that is not worth the living. When you fail your own ideal of yourself—then only have you been hurt. But then you can start over and readjust yourself and try again.

The ideal that will not fail you is the ideal of growth. The goal from which no one can turn you is the goal of achevement—the mark you set yourself. Help from others will never really avail you unless to it you add your own efforts to make it count. Others may set you on your feet—but you must walk.

Suppose you have come to the city counting on a friend from home who has preceded you by five years and is firmly established in high places. John once told you that if you ever needed help he would give it to you. You come to town. For a whole morning you cool your heels in the outer offices that guard John's sanctum from the rabble. At last you are admitted to his presence, and the august and insincere being a little success has made of John asks you many cool times are hard and that there isn't a thing in his office, but that he'll give you a letter to Smith. And Smith gives you a letter to Jones, and Jones to Brown, and at last some one sends you back to John, whence you started, and in a sudden access of fury you tear that letter up.

And in that moment you are started on the Highroad to Success. In that moment you get an ideal of yourself as a being capable of doing a few things for himself instead of trotting around carrying letters from one magnate to another like an idealized beggar.

Now you set out on your own merits. You are conscious of things you can do, of things you want to do, of a goal of achievement you want to reach on your own efforts. And when you become conscious of it—when you get that ideal of success—you are so surely started for it as if one of those magnates had given you a position which you might have filled well.

No sinecure is a real job. A real job is the thing you can do and want to do. To get to the position of editor of a magazine, a college man I knew once was a waiter in the cheapest of restaurants. But when he was serving ham and eggs he was on his way to success. He didn't despise his work. He regarded it as a stepping stone, and stepped firmly so he might leap to the next and bigger boulder that should carry him across the stream of discouragement.

He did his menial job well, and saved a bit of money from the "demeaning tips" he had to take—and could take fairly cheerfully because he was serving well enough to merit them. Then he wrote his story, and wrote it well. It was impressive enough to shove its way into the seventh paper he tried to sell it to—and then our hero was a reporter. And from the position of reporter to editor took him ten years of hard work—but of work with a goal in view.

No friends had helped this man. He had an ideal of himself as a being capable of work and of success. He had an ideal of the goal for successful achievement. He reached it. No disappointments counted—none could assail the dauntless soul.

And a dauntless soul is about the best gift of the fairies. If you are unafraid of work—unafraid of failure—unafraid of unkindness and afraid only of failing yourself, that fear will never be realized.

FOURTH OF JULY SERVICES IN BOSTON CHURCHES

Sermons on "The New Patriotism" will be preached in several Boston churches on Sunday.

On Boston Common a special patriotic service will be conducted at 3 p. m. by the Rev. E. P. Worth of the Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston.

"Americanization Day" will be emphasized at the open air meeting tomorrow evening in front of the Bromfield Tremont Street M. E. Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Kelly Jenness. Bishop Lawrence has sent the following letter to every minister in his diocese, calling for a deeper spirit of religion:

"It would seem as if the coming year would lead all people to deep searchings of heart as to the meaning and power of the Gospel of Christ in its bearing upon our civilization, our international relations and upon the personal life. May there not come to the church an opportunity for great spiritual leadership? Are we prepared to meet these problems and opportunities?

"May not the coming Summer be used by us in such a way as to give us fuller preparation? Our first duty may be to recuperate our physical and nervous strength, which if our work has been well done, may be somewhat exhausted. It may be well for us in our freedom from our Winter routine to turn our thoughts and interests definitely into other channels of avocation, thought and reading.

"Further than this, removed as we may be from the close contact with our work, we may be able to see things in a truer and better perspective. If so, I have the feeling that we may discover that an undue proportion of our time, thought and talk has been given to the national and international aspects of the war and of the relations of the warring nations as compared with the work that we have in hand, that of leading men to a stronger personal grasp of the foundations of the faith and of the relations of the faith to personal life."

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

Atlanta and the Elks of 1916

IN the month of May, 1914, Atlanta won a brilliant and enduring place among the convention cities of the United States.

The laurels of that great Shriners' convention crown the capital of Georgia as a host without a superior in the wide range of American hospitality.

The greatest assembly of Imperial Shriners that this illustrious social and fraternal order ever knew—ten thousand in number and twenty thousand in enthusiasm—were Atlanta's guests for seven days; happy, comfortable, untroubled, uncrowded, well fed, well housed, cordially welcomed and superbly entertained—from the opening day to the final goodbys.

It was an extraordinary and seemingly impossible feat for a city of 175,000 people to entertain the Shrine—the gayest and brightest and perhaps the richest organization in fraternal life. But to entertain the Shrine at its best—gathered in its greatest numbers, educated by the lavish hospitality of larger cities, and keyed to the top notch of expectation—and to entertain the Shriners confessedly better than they had ever been entertained before—has simply made Atlanta's reputation and stamped its invitations to other conventions with a guarantee as standard as the coin of the realm.

Now for 1916 Atlanta fervently desires to entertain the Grand Lodge of Elks of the United States. The Grand Lodge this year meets in July in Los Angeles, and Atlanta's invitation will be presented there by an able and eloquent committee of the Atlanta Elks.

Atlanta Elks will be able to say truthfully to the Elks of all the country: "All and more than we did for the Shriners of the United States in 1914 we will do for the Elks of the United States in 1916! If we gave the Shriners the greatest meeting they ever had, we are able to promise the Elks an even greater entertainment because we have behind us the experience and the education of that other brilliant convention."

And surely this brief speech, sincerely made, ought to carry to the American Elks the abundant assurance of everything that hospitality can provide or that the fraternal heart can desire.

It is worth a trip across the continent or from any part of the continent to see in the soft young Springtime this radiant and beautiful Atlanta of the South—most famous, most popular and most prosperous of all its cities.

It is a liberal education to an American who has not seen the South to go traveling through that beautiful and wonderful country when the trees and the grass are green, when the streams are all flowing softly, and the young crops are bursting from the earth, and the hearts of the most cordial and gracious people of the republic are pulsing and glowing with hospitality.

Governor Walsh Again Shows Wisdom

In no appointment has Governor Walsh shown the real political tendency of his mind more clearly than in the appointment of Frederick T. Fuller of Walpole on the Commission on Taxation. This commission, if it does its duty well, will perform one of the most important duties in the public service during the coming year.

Mr. Fuller has been a special investigator for the Governor during this session. He graduated from Harvard College at the head of his class. He was an instructor at Phillips Exeter Academy when a young man, and in that capacity taught some of the most successful men in the country, among them a gentleman who is said to have succeeded J. Pierpont Morgan as the most influential man in American finance.

Mr. Fuller is a special student of taxation and a publicist on the question. He belongs to that ever-increasing group called radicals, which is another name for the true conservatives. He was the secretary of the legislative bureau of the Progressive party last year, the ablest and the most sincere body of men ever appointed to represent any party organization before the Legislature, and composed of such prominent public spirits as Joseph Walker, Arthur D. Hill, Professors Johnson and Hart of Harvard.

Mr. Fuller's appointment, together with that of Mr. Creamer of Lynn, whose studies on taxation have been quite as earnest as Mr. Fuller's and whose views are equally sound, will guarantee to the public that the report of this commission will not be unanimous in favor of any tax-dodging scheme, as there is strong evidence that the gentleman who conceived this commission intended.

Once-Overs

Do what you have to do when the work comes to you.

So many people put off till the last minute the things which they should do earlier.

Then they rush, become nervous and are unable to make the speed that would have been easy had they started the work when it came to hand.

There are some people who, if they are going on a trip, would wait until the last minute to make preparations, figuring on everything going just right. And then something goes wrong, and there's a rush and a fuss, and every one starts off in a temper that's enough to spoil the day's pleasure.

"PEACE AND PREPAREDNESS"

Race Quality or Quantity

By Woods Hutchinson, A. M., M. D.

THE most unprofitable and astounding, but one of the busiest, industries of mankind has always been the manufacture of Taboos. It is not an infant industry of modern growth, but one of the oldest and most childish in the world.

Since man first stood upright he has plastered the whole face of the universe with taboos. Every interest and every event of his life and fortune has been covered with one—birth, death, sickness, the names of his ancestors, the names of his gods, the names of his kings, his wife, his mother-in-law, his children, have been made bad form or impious to name in public.

We have got bravely over most of these silences of ignorance and cowardice, although we still "knock on wood" whenever we boast of good luck.

But there is one subject over which the taboo still hangs as black and heavy as in the foggy dawn of civilization, and that is birth and its causes. Etiquette, convention, morals—all the forces of good society—still do their best to keep the origin of the human species as much of a mystery as was that of animal species before the epoch-making work of Darwin.

The more completely we can rule the subject out of court and prevent its every mention in public, the more smugly delighted we are. Even such a modern of the moderns as Kipling naively echoes the ostrich-like satisfaction of social convention when voicing the superior claims of the three-volume novel—"the stanch three-decker," which was "carrying tired people to the Islands of the Blest"—over modern realism and frankness:

"We raised no risky problems,
We prodded no hidden shame,
We never talked obstetrics,
When the little stranger came."

Of course, the moment we cease to mention a thing it ceases to exist—dies of mortification and a broken heart. Whether we talk obstetrics or not, the "little stranger" did not grow on a gooseberry bush or in a cabbage patch.

Nor will he grow strong and healthy from diseased or depraved or defective parents, or reach his full stature of either mind or body under starvation, overcrowding, or in the factory or sweatshop. Humanity is now insisting upon the lifting of this last taboo—upon letting in the light of science and of reason upon the mystery of birth.

"But," challenges some one, "for what purpose?"

For the same purpose for which all the other great forces of nature—steam, electricity, wind and wave, chemistry and physics—were investigated, studied and mastered—for the purpose of controlling them for the service of man.

To the further question, "Why not leave it to Nature? She knows best," comes the answer at once:

We ourselves, with all our powers, with our reason, our intelligence, our sense of justice, are a part of nature, and certainly not the lowest part. The question of birth control is merely between control by higher or by lower intelligence, or by instinct.

In the language of an honored and lately departed ex-President, "It is a condition, and not a theory, which confronts us."

In few words, this is the condition: Birth control, in the sense of limitation of the number of children born to a family, has come, and come to stay. It has spread all over the civilized world, and is penetrating into every class and level of society, whether we approve it or not. We might just as well attempt to sweep back the rising tide of ocean with Mrs. Partington's broom as to stop it with argument, or sermons, or laws. The only question is whether we will recognize it frankly and make the best of it.

Keep it on a rational basis and from going to unreasonable and injurious extremes.

What are the risks that are run: The first is extermination of the race, decay of European civilizations, and their overwhelming by floods of Asiatic or African barbarians.

Here are the facts: The modern methods of birth control first began to be publicly agitated about a hundred years ago, and were widely denounced as menacing race vitality at least seventy-five years ago. Within that period the population of the western, or civilized, world has increased nearly 500 per cent., and its wealth more than 1,000 per cent. No serious danger of racial decay visible in that.

Within the last forty years the birth rate of civilized nations has steadily declined from about thirty-six to about twenty-four per thousand living; and this decrease, in the opinion of the most careful students of vital statistics, has been due almost solely to intelligent interference and deliberate control. Yet in this period of forty years the population of the western world has almost doubled.

One glance at the vital ledger explains the paradox. The death rate in the same period has gone down from about thirty-two per thousand to fifteen. In other words, while the birth rate has declined 30 per cent. the death rate has been reduced 60 per cent. This again by the continued and increasing application of intelligence and scientific methods to human problems.

(This article, by Dr. Woods Hutchinson, on the question of birth control, will be concluded later. Other articles on timely medical topics by Dr. Hutchinson will follow.)

A Quiet Fourth

Some Annapolis midshipmen appear to have gone in too strong for strategy.

Inventor stayed seven hours in an airtight tank. Can't see why he needed to build a tank when there are so many telephone booths.

Historic affinities: Platonic friendships and the divorce court.

"And Are the Jews Going Back to Palestine?"

Mr. Julian Hawthorne Asked the Question of Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., Leader of American Zionists, Following the Convention Held This Week in Boston. What Mr. Brandeis Said to Mr. Hawthorne Will Appear EXCLUSIVELY in Tomorrow's Sunday American—The First Sunday of the Month. By the Way, Brings the American Sunday MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

Interviews—two in number—are likely to be among the most interesting features of tomorrow's Sunday American.

The first of these Sunday American interviews is with Louis D. Brandeis, Esq., of Boston, leader of American Zionists.

Mr. Brandeis is an American leader in many other directions. He led Boston's famous "Gas" fight, before the Legislature, some of the benefits of which we now enjoy. He led the movement which brought about savings-bank insurance in Massachusetts. Without a fee he has gone before the Supreme Courts of some of the Western States to argue (successfully) the constitutionality of laws regulating the hours of labor of women.

Here lately we in Boston have been hearing or reading of "Zionism."

Quietly there assembled here, last Sunday, a memorable Convention of American Zionists. In the public prints we found familiar names, Straus and Fels and Wise; and many others. At one great meeting, in Mechanics Building, $100,000 was raised. Mr. Nathan Straus, beloved of all Americans who care for babies, contributed the price of his palatial yacht to the "Cause."

And what IS the Cause?
What IS Zionism?
Does Zionism mean that the Jews are going back to Palestine, that they are one day again to take possession of their old homeland, and that a call is to be sounded throughout the world to return to the country of the fathers?

These and like questions have been asked during the week we do not know how many thousands of times, as this Convention assembled, quietly transacted its important business, and was adjourned. Perhaps YOU have asked them.

And, our own Mr. Brandeis having become the great popular leader of the Cause, it occurred to Mr. Julian Hawthorne, of the Sunday American, to discuss the subject of the hour with its famous leader.

Says Mr. Hawthorne:

No man of honest mind and generous heart can fail to share hopes and sympathies with the objects of Zionism. All must desire that the national heart of the Jewish race may at last find a local habitation and a name in that Promised Land from which they have so long been exiles, and that it may send out fibres of vitality and wholesomeness to all quarters of the globe.

It is NOT our purpose to spoil a really great Sunday AMERICAN feature by printing any considerable part of it here; and yet it is difficult not to yield to the temptation to answer one of the most frequently heard questions of the Week in Boston.

Says Mr. Hawthorne:

"I asked whether it were intended to send all Jews to Palestine."

"No Jews will be 'SENT' to Palestine," was the reply of Mr. Brandeis. "The place is made ready; legal right of habitation is secured; and any who wish are free to go. But it is of the essence of Zionism that there shall be no compulsion; and, of course, Palestine could accommodate hardly more than a fifth of the Jews in the world. But it is not the physical size of the central community that has importance; it is the spirit within it, and the strength of its organization.

"Athens dominated the civilization of its time by such a spirit, and the number of Greeks actually living in Athens was never relatively large. And when, in history, Jewish influence in the world was greatest, comparatively few of them lived in Palestine. But the impulse to return there is intensely practical, in spite of its idealistic element."

On many accounts we look upon Mr. Hawthorne's interview with Mr. Brandeis as one of the most important contributions ever offered to an American newspaper on the question of Zionism. We respectfully submit it to all in New England who may be interested in the subject for any reason whatever. And THAT, in our opinion, includes every New Englander.

The SECOND interesting interview to be printed in the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow is with Mr. Franklin Benjamin Sanborn, who will be eighty-four years old ten days before Christmas next and who has long been called the "Sage of Concord."

We have also been reading about Mr. Sanborn in the newspapers. He had "jumped the Town of Concord," and had "gone into New Hampshire." There was some talk of "extradition proceedings." They were going to "lock him up." Heaven knows what they were NOT going to do with him. All of this concerning a tall, white-haired gentleman in his eighty-fourth year!

Frank Sanborn, whom somebody in the Town of Concord would jail at the age of eighty-four because of some infraction of local regulations concerning sewer connections, was an intimate of Emerson and Thoreau and Alcott and John Brown, and has contributed to American letters a standard Life of each of them. Sixty years ago he was graduated from Harvard; and he has been a lecturer at Cornell, at Wellesley, and at Smith.

We asked the able young District Attorney for Middlesex what HE thinks about Concord and the Sanborn case, and Mr. Corcoran tells us that, in his opinion, the Sage is the "victim of mean and petty persecution."

We shall be glad to have YOUR opinion. We recommend to your Sunday consideration the Frank B. Sanborn Story in the AMERICAN. The interview is by Mr. Bert Ford, certainly ONE of the best and decidedly one of the most RELIABLE of New England reporters.

It is now quite apparent that there is not space in which to enumerate the Sunday AMERICAN'S various other attractions. We MUST, however, call general attention to the fact that the first Sunday of the month, as usual, brings with it the AMERICAN SUNDAY MONTHLY MAGAZINE.

The July number of the AMERICAN SUNDAY MONTHLY MAGAZINE consists of twenty pages. The cover, "A Love Score," was painted by Mr. Harrison Fisher. The contents include: "The Fall of Napoleon," by Guglielmo Ferrero; "Waste Lands" (fiction), by Arthur Stringer; "The Star Rower" (serial), by Jack London; "Blucher's March" (fiction), by Melville Davisson Post, illustrated by Howard Chandler Christy; "Honor," by Clarence Mellv; and the "Temptations of a Young Physician," by Wolfred Nelson, M. D.

Everybody who purchases a single copy of the Sunday AMERICAN tomorrow is entitled to ONE copy of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine without extra cost.
